Route 21 Now Completed; New Highway North

Shortest and Best Route to Points in Wisconsin and to the Northwest

After what has been a great struggle and considerable sacrifice on the part of towns along the highway to gain completion of route 21 from Chicago to Antioch and the Wisconsin state line, the task has finally been completed.

Antioch probably has put up a greater fight than any of the other towns, and time and again when it looked as if the road would be held up for a considerable period of time, the citizens have got together and representatives have called on all the authorities of the state up as high as the Governor on several occasions.

There were times when it looked like a forlorn task to get the work started, and then when it was started, it was still harder to keep it going, but the determination of some of the business men of Antioch to see the thing through and their continued harassing of the powers that be soon saw the north section of Route 21 completed. The continued wrangling over the right of way around Grayslake has caused considerable delay in the completion of that section.

The Pickus Engineering and Construction company has finished its contracts of the paving of section of route 21 and in about three weeks a complete route of cement will be open to the traveling public from the state line of Wisconsin through to Chicago on Milwaukee avenue.

It took about 45 days to lay a strip of seven miles on this section which is considered a record for laying cement this year.

The trucks which have been used on the job carry a load of about two tons and lay about 1 1/2 yards of 8-inch concrete. They deliver about 70 loads of concrete a day. The mixture consists of one sack of cement to 5 1/2 yards of gravel and sand.

EXPLOSIVE IS FOUND IN HUNT

Sheriff Edwin Ahlstrom went to Loon Lake Thursday afternoon on a dynamite hunting trip, following a complaint that there was a large supply of the explosive hidden in a house. Upon investigating, Sheriff Ahlstrom found a couple of sticks which were to be used for blowing up some stumps. The house in which they were found was locked and the owner was away.

The report that booze was hidden with the dynamite was proven false when the sheriff found that the bottles near the explosives contained lubricating oil.

INTIMATE $10,000 DAMAGE SUIT IN PROBATE ACTION

Action taken in probate court on Thursday in the estate of Paul Pavlick, Grayslake, would indicate that a damage suit for $10,000 is about to be started against the Chicago & Northwestern railroad company for his death August 14, at that village when a passenger train struck him, in the vicinity of the Terminal, Waukegan.

Action was taken as follows: Proof of heirship taken. Letters of administration issued to George Pavlick. Estate consists of a claim against the Chicago & Northwestern Railway.

LOEB-LEOPOLD TRIAL COST TO COUNTY IS $250,000

To date Cook county has spent $50,000 in its efforts to send Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb to the gallows for the slaying of Bobby Franks. Clarence Darrow said the defense has cost $50,000 exclusive of attorneys, and Illinois fees. The latter the rate of $250 per day, for each witness, may alone total $200,000.

PUT PADLOCKS ON FOX LAKE INNS LAST WEEK

Three inns and resorts at Fox Lake which had been ordered closed by injunctions issued by Judge Clara C. Edwards of the Circuit court were locked by the sheriff's office last week. The places hit by the court orders were Willis Inn, The Mayflower Inn, and Fitcher's resort.

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, September 1, 1904

Miss Gertrude Smart is spending this week in Milwaukee.

Miss Libbie Webb of Chicago spent over Sunday at her home here.

Corra Hooper returned from Chicago on Monday, where she has been visiting.

Miss Theo Smith of Ivanhoe visited her cousin, Mrs. W. F. Ziegler, the fore part of the week.

It is rumored that there is to be a brass band organized here in the near future.

Mrs. H. Riggs of LaFayette, Ind., is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. L. Harden.

Miss Lillie Watson and brother of Chicago are spending the week with relatives at Waukegan.

Harvey Watson of Chicago was out visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Watson and calling on Antioch friends a few days last week.

The new hall over the Webb & Boylan store that has been fitted up for the Woodman and Royal Neighbors will be ready for occupancy by the first of September.

The Ladies' Aid society of Lake Villa, will meet Wednesday, Sept. 7, with Mrs. H. P. Lowry at Eastside hotel, Fox Lake. Visitors are cordially invited to attend.

Miss Grace Hutchins had the misfortune to run a needle into her hand breaking the needle off, and has suffered quite a good deal from the accident.

Mrs. Will Hodge is very ill at the home of her sister, south of town. On Saturday Dr. Fisher of Chicago pronounced her to be in a very precarious condition.

George Cashmore Passes Away on Tuesday

George Cashmore, long a resident of Antioch, passed away at his home here Tuesday morning. Heart trouble was the cause of his death. Mr. Cashmore had lived in this section for 35 years. He leaves a sister, Miss Marion Cashmore of Antioch, two brothers, William Cashmore of Waukegan and Johnathan Cashmore of Wadsworth.

The funeral services will be held at the Methodist Episcopal church at Antioch at 2 p. m. today and burial will be at Rosecrans.

CHANNEL LAKE ICE HOUSE PROPERTY OPEN FOR SALE

Announcement is made this week for the receiving of bids on the sale of bids on the sale of the Oetting Bros., ice house property on Channel Lake. This property has always been considered a choice piece of real estate. Particulars will be found on a full page ad on another page in this issue. The bids will be open for 10 days only.

Delightful Tale of the West

Judith of Blue Lake Ranch

By JACKSON GREGORY

This is a western story with some new touches. The scene is one of those great modern ranches where not cattle alone, but all kinds of live stock are produced and diversified agriculture is practiced.

Vivid in romance and filled with the deeds of strong men and women, at the same time it goes into the details of ranch life and paints a picture of practical affairs. Not all cowboy by any means. The veterinarian has his place as also have the soil, cattle, hog and horse experts. Whether you are man or woman the remarkable but true-to-life heroine will win you.

SCHOOL DAYS

Antioch to Hear People's Church Choir Boys Sing

The choir of the People's church of Chicago will have an outing at the Sylvan Beach hotel during the weekend beginning Sept. 3rd and ending Sunday, Sept. 7th.

The People's church is non-sectarian, liberal and independent. The purpose of the church is to deal in plain terms with the supreme things in human life as measured by the rational conclusions of science and history.

Mr. C. K. Anderson, who has a home on Channel Lake, is president of the board of trustees.

An out-of-door service will be held at the Sylvan Beach hotel Sunday, Sept. 7, at three o'clock, at which Dr. Preston Bradley will speak on the subject of "Out-of-Door Religion." Invitations have been extended to the churches in the community and churches in the surrounding vicinity, and the community is cordially invited to this service.

The choir, of which DeWitt Dargis is director, will hold rehearsals twice a day, and on Saturday evening, the 6th, at 7:30 p. m., a private concert will be given on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Anderson, between Channel and Catherine lakes. Those who have boats, who would like to hear this concert, may assemble at the point and listen to it.

Advertisers on State Roads Are Being Prosecuted

Advertising signs along state aid roads in Illinois is prohibited by law. A campaign has been started in Lake county against the infraction of this law on all state highways. The state highway police have been instructed to swear out warrants against everyone who disobeys this law.

The first arrest was made in Winnebago county which took place a couple of days ago when Robert Myers, state highway department police, swore out a warrant for the arrest of L. J. Godfrey. Godfrey was taken before F. J. Krahn, justice of the peace, who fined him $10 and costs.

No signs of any kind will be allowed along the state aid roads in Illinois except the road signs placed there by state highway department's orders. The clearing out of signs along these roads prevents automobile accidents and makes these highways more slightly to the travelers.

BOND ISSUE IS BEING CARRIED

The election to vote on the bond issue to finance the Grayslake paving project created little interest. Being carried by a small vote.

Holiday Seekers Crowd Antioch on Labor Day

Again our old friend pluvius tried to dampen the ardor of our holiday crowd over Labor Day but failed to arrive in time to do much damage. Antioch and the surrounding country witnessed another bumper crop of holiday seekers over the three-day holiday and the resorts, amusements and town did a very good business.

The crowd started making its appearance Friday night and from then on there was a steady stream all day Saturday and Sunday.

The hotels were filled early and Saturday started to turn people away. Many of the business houses of Antioch did almost as big a business as that witnessed over the three day holiday of the Fourth of July.

Conditions on the main street of Antioch were a great deal better than the previous holiday, less confusion being in evidence. Channel Lake Pavilion had almost as large a crowd as over the Fourth, as did Sylvan Beach, and other amusement places around the lakes. Considering the weather conditions, the seasons business has proved far more successful than anticipated.

Pioneer of Lake County Passes Away Thursday

David Albert Willey, 92, of Big Hollow, near Fox Lake, died Thursday night at his home after a slight illness due to his advanced age. Mr. Willey was well known in Waukegan and throughout Lake county, having been one of the most active pioneers in that district. Funeral services were held from the home on Sunday with burial in the Grant cemetery.

Mr. Willey was born July 20, 1831, in Bristol, New Hampshire, and he came to Milwaukee in 1858. While living in Milwaukee he was well known here as he spent much time in and around Waukegan, and in 1862 he was married to Miss Anna McFadden of Rondout. He was at that time employed in the services of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway with whom he was connected for over 40 years. In 1893 he came to Lake county and has lived at Big Hollow ever since.

He is survived by three sons, Dr. D. A. Willey, a veterinarian of Fox Lake, Truman Willey and Charles Willey, all of whom have remained in Lake county.

Our Invitations to the Movies

The Antioch News invites as its guest, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Strang to witness Wednesday's presentation of William S. Hart in "Singer Jim McKee" at the Antioch theatres.

Big Barn Burns; Cattle Saved in Big $7,000 Blaze

The large barn on the farm of Charles Butterfield, two miles southwest of Libertyville, was completely destroyed by fire last Thursday morning and 10 head of cattle were saved only with difficulty. The estimated loss is between $6,000 and $7,000 only a small percentage of which being covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire is believed to have been spontaneous combustion, as there was a large quantity of new hay in the mow. This fire was only a short distance from Hawthorn farm owned by Samuel Insul, whose barn and three silos burned under similar circumstances last Sunday night.

The ten cows in the barn were led to safety, as Mr. Butterfield was nearby when it started.

A favorable wind was all that saved the residence, located nearby. A large number of barns in the neighborhood of Libertyville and Area have been destroyed this season; the fires are believed to have been caused by reason of the fact that the hay had to be put up under rainy weather conditions.

Kenosha County Fair Ladies Elect Solicitors

The ladies of the West Kenosha County Fair association met at the Community hall at Silverlake Saturday evening. The meeting was called to order by the vice chairman, Mrs. O. E. Lewis. Officers for the coming year were elected. Mrs. William Schenning, chairman; Mrs. O. E. Lewis, vice chairman; Mrs. Charles Barber, treasurer; to succeed themselves and Grace Carey, secretary.

The following committees were appointed to work for the fair: Chairman and Vice Chairman—Thursday, Mrs. R. F. Burton and Mrs. Charles Lotz; Friday, Mrs. Harry Lubeno, Mrs. Charles Oetting; Saturday, Mrs. A. C. Stoen and assistant not appointed.

The following were appointed as solicitors: Salem—Mrs. P. Olson, Mrs. Shonscheck, Miss Richards, Wilmet—Mrs. F. Burroughs, Mrs. Albrecht, Mrs. Jeddle, Mrs. H. McDougal, Silverlake—Mrs. Geo. Schmalzfeldt, Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. C. Hockney, Mrs. Flegle, Trevor—Mrs. Lubeno, Mrs. Oetting, Bassett—Mrs. George Dean, Mrs. Illdebrand, Brighton—Mrs. Schenning, Mrs. Brandles and Mrs. Miller, Randall—Mrs. H. Flegel, Mrs. A. Stoen. At large—Grace Carey.

The solicitors are going to ask for money, cabbages, potatoes, squash, beans, peas, salom, tomatoes, pickles, beans, pies, cakes, doughnuts, apples. All who wish to help the West Kenosha Fair diners by donating any of the above articles can get in touch with any of the committee ladies and their donations will be really appreciated.

A report read by the treasurer Mrs. C. Barber showed that 1250 tickets were sold for dinners at the fair last year and 243 complimentary tickets were issued. Receipts for meals were $759.15. Expenditures $406.76, making a balance of $352.39 which was turned into the gymnasium fund.

Road Conditions at the Lakes Much Better

Road conditions around the lakes show considerable improvement and the lakes are now getting down to normal.

The Grass Lake road cleared up this week and the work of tearing down the bridge has been completed.

The Channel Lake road is now open after being a source of real danger for a time.

Cedar Lake Claims Share of Drownings

Chicago Man Dives from Raft and Fails to Come Up

Another drowning was added to the long list of the year Sunday when Philip Meyers, 42 years of age, of 3327 North Albany avenue, Chicago, met death while swimming in Cedar Lake, Lake Villa.

Myers is reported to have dove from a raft about 60 ft., from the shore and failed to reappear. It is thought that Myers struck the raft in some way when he dove due to an abrasion on his head.

A son of Mr. Myers, Philip Jr., 16 years old was on the banks of the lake when his father went under the water and failed to again come up to surface. Assisted by others he searched the waters and located the body after a search of an hour. Dr. J. E. Waters was summoned and a called was put in for the lung motor recently installed by the Antioch Fire Department in an attempt to restore life, but without success.

The Chicago man came to the lake on Saturday with his wife and five children intending to stay over Labor Day. The depth of the water where Meyers drowned was about 10 feet. Examination revealed a large abrasion on the man's head, which, according to Deputy Coroner Edward Conrad, was caused either by striking a rock or the top of the raft. The verdict returned by the coroner's jury was accidental death by drowning.

A deaf and dumb man nearby at the time was the first to make the discovery that Meyers did not come up to the surface and signalled the man's son and others on shore, pointing to the bathing cap which was on the top of the water.

The remains were shipped to Chicago late Monday afternoon, the funeral was held Wednesday. Meyers is survived by a widow and five children, Philip Jr., 16; Loretta, 15; Marie, 15; Adelaide, 9; Jerome 6.

Capture Eight Barrels of Beer on Manure Spreader

The manner in beer runners camouflage their cargoes in an effort to escape detection while transporting them through Lake county has reached the peak of ingenuity, it appears. County Motorcycle Officer B. C. Hamlin captured a truckload of eight barrels of beer and two allied runners Wednesday afternoon on Rand Road just south of Volo that would have been a surprise to even the over seas "decorators."

The beer was in a low truck, camouflaged to appear like a manure spreader. Fertilizer was heaped on the barrels so that it was visible, at the top and sides of the load. A fork also "waved" above the "ram parts" to make it appear that the spreader had just been loaded and was being hauled to a nearby field.

Officer Hamlin looked at the license plates however and discovered that the truck was a long ways from home to be hauling fertilizer.

The officer arrested the two men who were hooked at the county jail as H. C. McWilliams and George Martin, both of whom declared they live in Chicago. They refused to state for whom they were working.

Mrs. Ordway Passes Away at Age of 95

Mrs. Rosetta M. Ordway of Grass Lake corners passed away at the age of 95 years on Sunday morning. Mrs. Ordway was born in Orange, New Hampshire, and lived at Grass Lake about ten years with her daughter, Mrs. Bloom. The remains were shipped to New Hampshire Tuesday for burial.

TOSH HOTEL IS RAID VICTIM

The Tosh hotel, Fox Lake, was raided Wednesday evening by the sponge squad, and the report was given out that at least 10 gallons of liquor had been found. Tosh was scheduled to pay a fine of $400 before Justice Hervey Coulson, it was understood.

CHAPTER XVIII

Transley, returning by an earlier train than he had expected, found Sarah at the house and Wilson engaged in dialogue with the family pig. The lad, on hearing the motor, rushed to his father's arms.

"Well, well, what a big boy you are!" cried Transley, swinging him up to his shoulders. "And how is the pig? And how is your friend Grant?"

"Mother hasn't let me go to see him lately. I don't know why. Ever since the night I slept at his house—"

"You slept at his house? When?"

"The day you went away. And mother was there in the morning—"

"Wilson, where is your mother?"

"I don't know, daddy."

He strode sharply into the house.

"Sarah, where is Mrs. Transley?"

"I don't know, sir," said the maid.

Then, frightened out of her reticence by her master's unusual severity—"I think she has gone to the old quarry, sir. She often goes up there of an afternoon."

"A trysting-place!" Transley gasped inwardly. He dropped the boy and, in his own room, found a revolver and cartridges. A moment later he was swinging in long, angry steps up the quarry road. Wilson, puzzled by the sudden interruption of his father's greeting, followed at a discreet distance.

"I've suspected—I've suspected," Transley was raving as he walked; "I've suspected—more than I've said. Give 'em enough rope. That's my plan. And now they've taken it. By God, if they have!"

With every step the wrath and horror within him grew. He was at the quarry before he knew it. He paused for a moment to listen. Yes, there were people present. There were sounds—God, it sounded like a fight!

Transley rushed in. A man and a woman were reeling in each other's arms. "I hate you! I hate you!" the woman was crying. "You coward! You coward!" The woman was his wife. The man was—not Dennison Grant.

Although Transley had a revolver in his pocket it was not his customary weapon, and his thought did not turn naturally to it. In this tremendous moment he forgot it altogether. He rushed upon his wife's assailant, clutching him about the throat.

With the strength of a madman Drakz flung Zen to the ground, where she fell unconscious at his feet. Then he tore himself free from Transley's grip about his throat. The next moment the two men were swaying about in a struggle of death.

As they swung in each other's arms, crushing, choking, clutching at each other's throats, it was slowly forced home upon Transley that his was a losing fight. His assailant had the strength, and after a hesitating moment of surprise, the ferocity of a lion. He had broken Transley's first grip of advantage about his throat and seemed in momentary prospect of reversing the situation. There were no talk, no cries, no oaths; it was a silent fight save the grunting and panting which became more and more labored as the minutes drew on. In their clutches Drakz's stubbled face rubbed into Transley's well-groomed cheek; his snarling teeth snapped, but missed, at Transley's jaw.

Then it was that Transley remembered his revolver. Breaking Drakz's grip by a superhuman effort, he drew the weapon and fired. The shot went wild, and the next instant Drakz was upon him again. In the struggle the revolver fell from Transley's hand, and both men began fighting toward it. As Drakz's fingers clutched it, Transley kicked his feet from under him, and the two went down together. Hitting about on the rocky floor of the quarry they approached, slowly, unconsciously, the edge of the precipice that fell away to the river.

On the very edge Transley realized this new and hideous danger, and scrambled to his feet, dragging Drakz with him. Drakz realized it, too, and gleefully, fiendishly joined again in the combat, deliberately forcing the fight toward the river.

"I've got you, Transley!" he hissed, speaking for the first time since Transley's fingers had clutched about his throat; "I've got you, and you're going over there—with me. Zen tried to drown me once; now I'll drown you, if I have to go with you. I've got you, Transley!"

"Drakz!" Transley exclaimed, a light of recognition breaking upon him. "You!"

"Yes, me—Zen's old lover, and you give her to me, or we go out together!"

"You're mad, Drakz, mad!" Transley cried. "Why?"

But at that moment Drakz, by a sudden contortion, whipped out a knife from his pocket. Transley felt its sting—once, twice, three times; then darkness fell. Zen, recovering from her stun, sat up in time to see her husband staggering in the arms of Drakz.

Half a mile away Dennison Grant had been lazily plowing up and down his prairie field when he suddenly saw Wilson approaching at his topmost speed. Since the night of the storm he had missed the boy tremendously; sometimes he had thought that if only he might have the companionship of Wilson he could be reconciled to the loss of Zen. He knew that a veto had been placed on Wilson's visits, and he bore Zen no ill will; he felt that he understood her motives. But now, as the boy came racing toward him, Grant felt his heart bounding about in an extraordinary manner.

"Why, what's the matter?" Grant cried, as Wilson drew up beside him. "Has something happened to the pig?"

It was a moment before the boy could speak.

"A man—is fighting my—father—and shooting at him," he gasped.

"And my mother's—dead!"

Grant cleared the plow at a bound.

"Where?" he demanded.

"At the old quarry. I ran all the way."

But Grant was already stripping the harness from Prince. The next moment he had flung himself upon the horse's back, and, leaving the boy to follow as he could, was galloping across the prairie to the quarry trail. Under his urging the astonished plow horse developed a quite surprising speed; in a couple of minutes they were on the old road to the quarry, and a moment later horse and rider dashed into the rock-chimney cut which overhung the river.

Grant's first glimpse was of Zen; she had struggled to her feet; thank God, she was not dead. Then he saw the two men by the edge of the cliff; Transley he recognized; saw the knife rise and strike—

The blow Grant landed in Drakz's face sent that gentleman spinning like a top. Like a top, too, Drakz whizzed at the end of his spin; wobbling over the edge of the precipice, and dropped out of sight.

Grant fell on his knees beside the stricken Transley; leaned over; raised the quivering form in his arms. Zen, beside him, drew the sorely mangled head to her breast and whispered words of endearment into ears soon closing to all mortal sounds.

Presently Transley opened his eyes. They were sane, quiet eyes now; the light was over; only the eternities lay ahead.

"Grant—tell me one thing," he murmured. "You have been struggling with Zen?"

"As God hears me," Grant answered.

For an instant the eyes of the rivals—and friends—met; rivals no longer; friends only, forever. Then the form of Transley shivered in the arms of Zen and Dennison Grant! Shivered, and settled into eternal sleep.

The sun of another summer was flooding the tawny flanks of the foothills when Zen and Dennison Grant rode together over the old trail to the Y.D. Since Transley's death Grant had not spoken to Zen of love; he seemed to know that at the proper time Zen herself would break silence. And now she had asked him to accompany her to her father's home, and to spend a few days running their old haunts in the foothills.

Y.D., older, but in unimpaired vigor, greeted him cheerfully. "Well, well, you old coyote! Had to come back to the hills! They all do. If I was a young man again I'd get me a herd o' hoppers an' trek into the back country, spite o' hell an' high water—"

The greeting of the rancher's wife was less effusive, but no less sincere. The evening was spent in hospitality and in a picturesque recounting by the rancher of events in the brave days before barbed wire fences pricked every bubble of romance, and at a late hour it was Zen's own hands that carried Dennison's lamp and guided him to the spare room for the night.

The next afternoon Zen appeared at the gate with horses saddled for two. "Come, Denny, we are going for a ride," she announced, "and in a few minutes their mounts were pounding down the trail which led over the foothills to the South Y.D."

Zen was strangely silent upon their ride, and Grant, after futile attempts to engage her in conversation, was content to ride at her side and admire her horsemanship and her beauty. The suffering and the years had left her strangely unscarred; she seemed to Grant wholly as adorable as on that day of her unspoken confession when they had met at the ford. Soon she must speak! Well, he had waited; he still could wait.

They followed the trail, little changed by all the passage of years, down the slopes to the South Y.D. They forded the river, and Zen swung her horse about in the grove of cottonwoods.

"You remember this spot, Denny?" she asked. "It is where we first met."

"I remember," he said. No, he would not be tempted into a demonstration. She must lead.

The sun was gliding the mountain tops with gold, and gliding, too, Zen's face and hair with beauty ineffable. For a moment she sat in the slanting light like a statue of bronze. For an instant her eyes met his; then fell. She spurred her horse to a plunge and galloped ahead up the valley.

Miles passed, and the quick twilight of the foothills was upon them before she drew up again. This time it was by a great boulder, a sort of flat rock stranded on the sloping shoulder of a hill. Something seemed to burst in Grant's throat as he recognized it—the rock on which they had spent that memorable night so long ago when the world and they were young! Thank God, Zen was young still! Romance burned in her heart—who but Zen would have thought of this?

He sprang from his horse, and she from hers. He approached her with open arms.

"Zen—you have brought me here for a purpose! Don't deny it! I understand!"

She was in his arms. "How well you read one's mind," she murmured. "But ah, how slowly!"

He held her tight. There were words to say, but he could whisper only "Zen—my Zen," into the tangled glory of her hair.

At length she held him gently away. "I believe some one is coming up the trail," she said.

It was true enough; a horse and rider were rapidly approaching. As he skirted the hill he caught sight of them, swung off from the trail and rode up beside them.

"Ah, here you are!" he exclaimed. "Hope I didn't keep you waiting, Mrs. Transley!"

"You are punctuality itself," Zen said, as she took his hand. "You haven't met Mr. Grant? Denny, this is Mr. Munroe—the reverend Mr. Munroe."

"The reverend! What! How! Zen, explain things!"

"Very simple. Mr. Munroe was to meet us here at eight. It's eight o'clock, and here he is."

Zen was unstrapping a kit from her saddle. "I have a document here—if I haven't lost it—which will interest Mr. Munroe. Ah, here it is!"

She produced an envelope, and Mr. Munroe examined the contents. "Seems all in order," he remarked. "A license authorizing the marriage of Dennison Grant and Zenith Transley. This rock should make a very acceptable pulpit. Suppose, Mr. Grant, you take this woman's hand in yours and stand before me?"

It was dark when the minister, having completed the ceremony and shared in the supper which Zen produced from a saddlebag, said a hearty adieu and turned his horse's head down the valley. Dennison and Zen listened to the pounding of hoofs until it died out in the distance. Then the tremendous, the immeasurable silence of the hills wrapped them all about, folded them in its friendly arms, fondled and encreased them on the threshold of their new life.

After awhile the moon came up, white and glorious, as it had that night so many years before.

Illinois Capitol Grounds Now Among Most Beautiful in Country, Artists Declare

With the completion of the new State Centennial building this year, the landscaping of the state house grounds which has been one of the hobbies of Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson, has taken definite form.

Illinois can now boast that it has one of the most beautiful settings for its capitol of any state in the Union. Not so many years ago the state house sat in the middle of a dandelion patch. Such trees as had been planted apparently were set out without plan or reason. The lawn was a ruin and there was no shrubbery and few flower beds.

When the plans for the new Centennial building were being considered, Secretary Emmerson, who is custodian of the building and grounds by virtue of his office, determined that the new plot of ground and the original capitol grounds should be brought into harmony by comprehensive landscaping.

An expert landscape gardener was engaged to work out a plan. Trees were uprooted and other trees set out. Shrubby was planted and flower beds were prepared. A greenhouse was constructed on the power plant grounds and the lawn plowed up and resown.

Now that it is all complete, everyone agrees that the grounds are one of the most beautiful in the country. The capitol, with the Centennial building in the background, presents an artistic and dignified appearance.

Grounds have been laid out with a view to the ultimate erection of two additional buildings on the plot occupied by the Centennial building. The state will need these within the next few years.

WHAT did you say about the new woman being a type? Well, hardly! She may be short-haired, because a majority of women are that today, but she is far from being, in generality, the strong-jawed, hard-visaged, masculine appearing figure which the cartoonists represent her to be. She is as numerous and as interesting in her variety as woman has ever been.

Get acquainted with Judith, the charming little boss of Blue Lake Ranch. You will meet a new woman, a really brand-new sort, one—in this respect not unusual—who would rather be a woman than a man, but, called upon to do a man's part, does it thoroughly. Circumstances called her into a unique line of endeavor. She carried it through in a man's way, the only way it could be done, but she made it more effective by some fascinatingly feminine touches.

MORE BY-PRODUCTS USED AS INDUSTRIES INCREASE

New industries are continually being launched, and with every one of them there are certain by-products produced which must be used in some way if the greatest efficiency is to result.

The Bureau of Dairying of the United States Department of Agriculture has kept in advance of these growing industries by making feeding tests of numerous such by-products as feed for dairy cows. Some of these feeds tested have only recently been prepared in a commercial way. Their value as feed for dairy cows may be summarized here.

Flax meal which is made from the waste in the canning of sardines by pressing out most of the oil and then drying and grinding the residue, was found to be worth pound for pound 20 or 25 per cent more than prime cotton seed meal, although not so palatable.

Peanut feed the residue from cold-pressed unshelled peanuts, was found to possess a nutritive value of 74 per cent of that of primed cottonseed meal. Potato meal specially prepared was worth 78 per cent as much as corn meal. Sweet potato meal appears to be almost as valuable as corn meal as a feed for dairy cows; but the maximum value that can be assigned to velvet-benn meal is but 65 per cent of that of cottonseed meal.

Potato silage and corn silage were found to possess about the same feeding value. Apple-pectin pulp, a by-product in the extraction of pectin from apple pomace, compared with dried beet pulp, was found to be less efficient as feed.

Hydrolyzed sawdust is unpalatable, contains but little nutriment, and can be fed only in small quantities. The maximum value that apparently can be given to hydrolyzed sawdust is 14.5 per cent of that of corn meal.

Supplementing with cane molasses a ration already suitable is not economical. Compared with an equal weight of hominy feed, the molasses appears slightly less valuable. Molasses renders feeds of poor quality more palatable and induces a greater consumption of nutrients, a matter of importance in feeding exceptionally high-producing cows.

DAIRY EXHIBITS FOR THE WESTERN STATES

As a part of the extension program on dairying in the Western States the United States Department of Agriculture has prepared three sets of dairy exhibits, each different from same fundamental factors underlying the others, yet all emphasizing the successful dairying. The main theme in these exhibits is it pays to keep good high-producing cows and feed them well.

One exhibit gives the result of cow-testing association studies. It shows a poor cow, representing a large group, that averaged 150 pounds of butterfat a year, with an income over feed cost of only $26 per cow. Contrasted with this is a good cow, representing another large group, that averaged 300 lbs., of butterfat a year, with an income over feed cost of $74 per year per cow. The owner of the low producers had to house, feed, and care for three cows to get the same income over cost of feed that the owner of the good cows got from one.

These exhibits also show that the way to get high producers is to use good bulls, keep records of production, cull the herd and raise heifers from the best cows. Having got good cows, the suggestions are made to feed liberally, have good pastures and use them properly, provide silage for winter feeding, and be sure the ration contains sufficient mineral matter, which it is suggested should be supplied by feeding plenty of alfalfa, clover or other legume hay.

One part of these exhibits emphasizes the importance of producing dairy products of the best quality. High quality is associated with such fundamental practices as clean cows, small-top milking pails, thorough washing and steaming of utensils, quick cooling of the milk or cream to low temperatures, and finally quick and frequent delivery to market.

Another section compares dairy cows with a single and double track railroad. As the double-track railroad does more than twice the business of a single-track railroad, so the cow that produces 300 pounds of butterfat a year yields more than twice as much income over feed cost as the cow that produces 150 pounds of butterfat a year.

WORLD WAR VETERANS DISAPPROVE DEFENSE DAY

A letter of disapproval of the "so-called Defense Day," sent to President Coolidge, asserting that the present plan is "nothing more than a common 'gyp' or, in other words, a rald on the pocket-books of the patriotic citizens by a gang of slogan makers and professional propagandists known to the war veterans as the flag waving trust, who have grown rich by exploiting the sufferings of war veterans, and now that we have driven them from our affairs, have turned a newer, and as they hope, more profitable gyp."

"As Defense Day originated in this organization, we feel it our duty to call your attention to the gyp that is being connected up with it."

"When Defense Day really is in the hands of the War and Navy Departments, when military officers have absolute control of the defense plans of the nation, and are not browbeaten to lend themselves as tools of a sick gang of parasites; when our disabled comrades are properly taken care of; when the war veterans who won the war are not seceded at when asking for a just compensation for their wartime sacrifices; when a loan shark's emergency act is not called a soldier's bonus—then will this organization give its support to defense days."

GOVERNMENT WHITEWASH

A great many requests for a formula for good whitewash are received by the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. The government whitewash formula is probably one of the best. It is whiter than most mixtures and is almost as serviceable as paint for wood, brick or stone. It is recommended by the government for whitewashing light-houses.

A pint of this wash when carefully applied will cover about ten square feet of surface. The following is the standard recipe:

"Slake half a bushel of unslaked lime with boiling water, cover during process to keep in steam, strain the liquid thru a fine sieve or strainer, and add to it 7 pounds of salt, previously dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot, half a pound of Spanish whiting, and one pound of clear glue, previously dissolved by soaking in cold water and then hanging over a slow fire in a small pot hun to a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir well, and let it stand for a few days, covered from dirt. It should be applied hot, for which purpose it can be kept in a kettle over an oven or a portable furnace."

"Coloring matter may be added as desired. For cream color add yellow ochre; for pearl or lead, add lamp black or ivory black; for tawny, add proportionately four pounds of amber to one pound of Indian red and one pound of common lamp black; for common stone color, add proportionately four pounds of raw umber to two lbs. of lampblack." L. Mickelson, and Mr. and Mrs. P. Terkelson all of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Greene of Chicago, Ind., visited over Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Laursen.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Radtke expect to motor to Indiana the latter part of the week and spend the week end at the home of their daughter, Mrs. H. P. Carey, at Indianapolis, Ind.

PUREBRED CALF-GUEST OF HONOR AT PICNIC

A purebred Holstein calf had the distinction of being guest of honor at a picnic and basket dinner of the Chestnut Grove community in Davies county, Kentucky. For many years the community had paid slight attention to improved livestock, but on becoming interested it is now one of the most active in the state for the betterment of its farm animals. The calf is the offspring of a purebred sire and a purebred dam, and is believed to be the first purebred animal born in the community.

In reporting the instance to the United States Department of Agriculture, Wayland Rhoads, field agent in animal husbandry for Kentucky, stated that the picnic will be followed shortly by a scrub-sire trial. At this trial the jury of farmers will pass judgment on a suitable "prisoner" probably a scrub bull.

A GOOD BUSINESS

Sheep raising is one live-stock and farming industry which is paying in America today. No sheep man has any "kick" coming if he cares properly for his stock. The future was never so bright for sheep business to remain as good as at present because there is a world shortage of sheep and wool. All textiles are scarce and cotton is approaching wool prices per pound.

America has but a few more than half the number of sheep of twenty years ago. Australia, our chief competitor is about 40 per cent short of fifteen years ago. The great range country which formerly produced the American surplus has been so curtailed because of fenced lands by small farmers, that their production has been decreased about 60 per cent in the past fifteen years.

Thus you see, with the increase in cost of production in the West, because of high overhead expenses in operation, together with feed bills and necessity of either owning in fee simple their grazing lands, or hiring pasture from the government on forest preserves, the cost is much greater to carry a sheep on the range than on our Eastern farms.

No farm is too large and none too small to carry at least a few sheep, and every farm in America should have a small flock. Often the smaller flock the greater the dividends. Sheep do better in small flocks.

Your acres contain plenty of diamonds and sheep will find them if you will give them a chance to eat weeds and cheap grasses which are going to waste on farms in Lake county.

A party recently asked when to purchase feeding lambs and what kind to buy. Lamb feeding is always a speculative proposition, but that breeding ewes, will always pay a sure profit if cared for.

With breeding ewes the advantage of gain would be much greater than with wethers as lambs and wool from good breeding ewes would not only pay original cost of ewes but pay their cost of keep as well for one year.

SAVE SOME OF YOUR OLD CORN.

The spring of 1924 was unusually backward in many sections. Following this, the growing conditions were not so good, with the result that the bulk of the corn is extremely late throughout the corn belt and northward. It is so late that most of the crop will be unfit for seed unless the frost holds off longer than usual.

The United States Department of Agriculture is calling attention to this fact at the present time in order to prevent, if possible, a serious seed-corn situation in the spring of 1925. The higher prices for corn in the last few weeks are drawing much of the old crop from the farms. Farmers not having enough seed corn for 1925 left over from last year's supply save the best of their bulk crop corn from which to obtain seed, if necessary. If this year's crop is killed by frost before it is mature, this old corn will provide a source from which seed can be selected for planting in 1925.

RECOMMENDS FEBRUARY LAMBS IN ILLINOIS SHEEP RAISING

The raising of early lambs rather than late ones is recommended by W. G. Kammlade, assistant chief of sheep husbandry at the College of Agriculture, who says that breeding for early lambs should start in early September. It is true that early lamb raising takes more equipment and that the lambs and ewes must be partly barn fed at least instead of the lambs being raised entirely on pasture, but those who raise early lambs find that their returns are more than enough to cover the cost of extra feed and care at a time when other farm work is not urgent, he pointed out. Early lambs are those which are dropped from the middle of February to the first of March and they usually can be marketed before midsummer without any trouble.

SILAGE GASES DANGEROUS

That poisonous gases formed in silos overnight while in process of being filled are deadly, is the seasonal warning of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Freshly cut silage in a partially filled silo produces a poisonous gas. If there is no circulation of air this gas remains in considerable volume. Death may result from entering a silo containing this gas.

A precaution recommended by Government specialists will avert the danger. They advise running the blower of the ensilage cutter for a few minutes before anyone enters the silo.

Air currents stirred up by the blower will dilute the gases sufficiently to drive them from the silo. It is then safe to enter.

T. B. Testing Shown Graphically

The remarkable increase in the number of cattle tested annually for tuberculosis since 1918 is the subject of a chart prepared by the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. In 1918 Federal and State veterinarians made official tests of 14,143 cattle under the uniform plan for tuberculosis eradication. Last year the number of cattle tested was 3,460,849, or nearly thirty times as many.

Figures like the foregoing, though striking, are rather difficult for the mind to grasp. The chart showing the increase in tuberculin testing depicts the annual tests by outline figures of cows of various sizes. The increase in size of the cow for the six years shows increase in sentiment favoring tuberculosis eradication.

Tuberculosis in Calves Studied

The prevalence of tuberculosis among calves has received study by the Bureau of Animal Industry in connection with its activities in the eradication of bovine tuberculosis from the country. Contrary to prevalent belief, young calves are frequently infected with the disease, especially in herds where tuberculosis has long been present. Of 50,039 such calves under six months old tested 1,564 reacted to the test. This proportion shows 3.1 per cent of tuberculosis in calves under six months in infected herds. Among calves from six months to a year old the per cent of reactors was found to be 4.9 per cent.

The most practical means, department veterinarians state, of preventing tuberculosis among calves is to eradicate the disease from the older cattle and maintain the herd on a tuberculosis-free basis.

PAINTING HINTS

"Painting is a job most farmer can do if he gets at it when his field work is not rushing. The chief points to keep in mind are to use good paint and apply it on clean dry surfaces. The U. S. Department of Agriculture has provided Farmers' Bulletin No. 474, that will prove of value to every one who does his own painting. The title of this bulletin is 'Use of Paint on the Farm.'

The fall of the year is a good time for painting, especially after frost has killed the insects. The old buildings are well dried out by the summer heat.

GIRLS CONTROL

THEIR OWN FATE

"This is rightly called the age of woman. To the girl of today life offers bewildering opportunities—a career, marriage and motherhood, or the life of the lily who toils and spins not. Hers the choice.

"But the choosing is only the overture to the conflict which spells drama. For while youth and beauty are hers, a woman must contend with fate—and circumstances—and the age-old story of the way of a man with a maid."

The foregoing is the captivating theme of "Lilies of the Field," a First National picture which is coming to the Crystal theatre on Saturday for only one day's engagement. It was directed by John Francis Dillon, who made "Flaming Youth," and co-stars Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle, who are supported by Sylvia Bremer, Myrtle Stedman, Alma Bennett, Cranford Kent, Charles Murray, Phyllis Haver, Cissy Fitzgerald, Edith Ransom and Charles Gerrard.

Miss Griffith has the greatest role of her remarkable career—that of a young wife who discovers that marriage is not the gateway to everlasting happiness. Heroically shouldering the disappointments and tragedies of life, her resistance slowly gives way and she is about to seek forgetfulness in a life of ease and gaiety when real love enters her life.

Hints for the Household

SCISSORS A HELP

I find scissors in the kitchen are a great help. There are many uses for these besides cutting string and thread. Thus, if they are kept clean they will serve for many purposes.

I use scissors to:—
Cut rhubarb. (It does not string this way.)

Cut grape fruits sections.
Cut lettuce.
Cut string around asparagus after I have taken it from the hot water and placed it in desired position—on platter. And, last but not least, I use my scissors to "gualcure" my flowers daily.

Kitchen Conveniences

The other day I went through a new house and the very best part of it was the kitchen. It was all white and Oh! so cheerful! This kitchen was very complete and two of the two of the nicest additions were a dish pan closet and built-in drop leaf table.

A Place for the Dish Pan

Under the sink at one end of the kitchen had been built a small closet with a door. This was just for the dish pan and dish rags. It made it possible to have the dish pan not only put away, but out of sight—handy but not in the way.

A PANTRY BRUSH

Use a Pastry Brush (or a convenient size paint brush) to:—
Butter tins, and thus not soil fingers.

Butter pastry—to make it richer and browner.
Dip into melted butter and spread it on sandwiches.

THE EXTRA TABLE

This was a drop leaf table fastened to the wall that could be put up when needed and would help immensely in serving large numbers.

To Clean Mirrors

Mirrors or plate glass may be easily cleaned by sponging them with a cloth dampened with alcohol.

Sifted Flour

To save time and to make baking easier it is wise to always have a covered pan of sifted flour handy. This makes less mess and trouble than to sift the flour at the last minute.

COOKING HINTS

Baked Peaches

Baked peaches are different, easy to fix and delicious. Put peaches in a pan with skins on. Sprinkle sugar on them, (as for baked apples). Cover bottom of pan with water. Bake one hour. Serve with cream.

Peach Butter

This is good for jam short cake or Sundaes. Take one-half of a peck of peaches. Remove skins—stone and mash. Add a little less sugar than peaches. Cook slowly 3 or 4 hours until done. Stir frequently. When done, it will be dark and settled looking in pan.

BAKING HINTS

Tea Cake

Good for breakfasts, luncheons or Sunday night teas:—
1 cup sugar.

1 egg.
1 cup milk.
¾ cup of butter.

2 cups of flour.
2 teaspoons of baking powder.
Sprinkle top with sugar and bake 20 to 30 minutes.

Sugar Cookies for Wee Folks

1 cup sugar.
1 cup butter (creamed well).
1 egg (well beaten).

2 teaspoons of baking powder.
3 tablespoons of water.
2 cups of flour.

1 teaspoon of vanilla.
Roll this—cut in desired shapes—sprinkle with granulated sugar and bake.

Luncheon Dish

Take a package of elbow macaroni. Put in a baking dish, alternating with cut up pimento and grated cheese. Bake a short while.

GENERAL HELPS

To Prevent Children's Diseases

A prominent health official has said that sickness could be lessened greatly by one little act. That is to always wipe thoroughly with a clean damp cloth the top of every milk or cream bottle before removing the cap.

GLARING AUTO LIGHT LAW IS OFTEN MISUNDERSTOOD

The section of the motor vehicle law in Illinois applying to lights was amended at the 1923 session of the legislature, and, according to the legal department of the Chicago Motor Club, the amendment is not fully understood by many motorists.

The law says: "On approaching another vehicle approaching in an opposite direction, and within not less than 250 feet of same, any person in charge of a motor bicycle or motor vehicle shall dim, drop or extinguish such headlights."

Owners of vehicles equipped with glare lenses that deflect the rays are not allowed under the provisions of the act to keep on their brights when meeting other vehicles, the only exception being those cars equipped with devices that throw the light down on the road by means of tilting the reflector or lamp, this type coming under the head of "dropping" the light.

Investigators for the club have ascertained that visitors from other states in which certain types of lenses are approved by law are the most frequent violators of the Illinois law.

61 Years of Service

Folks, gaze upon the picture of Capt. R. H. Cooke, a police officer with 61 years of service behind him and—still going strong! His is a record that, we believe, stands unequalled anywhere in this country.

Capt. Cooke, who now is 85 years old, mind you—was the first policeman ever appointed to a government position. The great Abraham Lincoln assigned him to duty in the Department of Agriculture in 1864. And he's held that job down—winning promotion from time to time—with an unblemished record ever since.

"I'll be going as good as over when I hit the Century mark, too!" says Capt. Cooke. Well,—Best 'o luck, Cap! Here's hoping!

"The Republican administration has handled the foreign debt problem in a business-like manner," asserts the Republican Publicity Association in a statement issued today through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr. "When the Republican party assumed control in March, 1921, it found in the Treasury the obligations of foreign governments aggregating, in principal and unpaid interest, some $11,000,000,000. They represented money raised from the American people through the sale of Liberty Bonds; in fact, more than half of all the money collected from our people through the sale of Liberty Bonds went to pay war expenses of some twenty other governments all of which claimed to be aiding the allied cause in some material way. Those foreign obligations were in the form of demand notes bearing five per cent interest and payable in gold. But although the loans had been outstanding from two to four years when the Republicans took charge there had been no effort to collect a dollar of interest, much less of principal. American taxpayers were being called upon to provide all the interest on those Liberty Bonds the proceeds of which had been turned over to foreign governments, and also to provide an annual sinking fund to retire the debts which rightfully should have been paid by those alien borrowers."

"As part of their general program of bringing order out of chaos in government affairs, the Republicans immediately applied themselves to the foreign debt problem. Congress enacted a law creating the Foreign Debt Refunding Commission, whose duty it became to negotiate with the debtor countries and arrive at a settlement for the liquidation of the obligations over a period of years. The law named minimum requirements as to interest and other terms below which the Commission could not go.

"Invitations were promptly issued to the debtor nations to send delegates to Washington for conference. Several of those delegations have come, with the net result that agreements have been concluded with Great Britain, Finland, and Hungary under which interest on their obligations is being regularly paid and the principals liquidated in semi-annual installments. No less than thirty-five per cent of that total obligations of eleven billions is being turned back to the American people by the Republicans where not a dollar had been received during the years of Democracy. The responsibility of American taxpayers to supply funds for principal and interest payments on that thirty-five per cent has ceased which is one substantial reason why reductions in taxation have been made possible."

"Our attitude," reads the Republican National Platform in referring to the debt repayment policy, "has not been that of an oppressive creditor seeking immediate return and ignoring existing financial conditions. Our position has been based on the conviction that a moral obligation such as was incurred should not be disregarded. We stand for settlements with all debtor countries similar in character with our debt agreement with Great Britain."

"Republican debt policy for the future will be the same as the policy for the last three years which has made such progress toward final settlement. Arrangements with other debtor countries will be facilitated when the Dawes reparations plan begins to function, and its functioning is being aided by tactful though unofficial officers and other prominent Republicans."

The Company Invites Customers' Questions

No. 12 in a series of statements about the Company's business.

The Pink Ticket Plan

EMPLOYEES in the Company stores or offices have access to information sources, but the meter reader, serviceman, salesman or other employee whose work is outside, is not prepared always to answer questions or to take care of requests unrelated to his immediate duties.

So to make certain that you or any other customer will receive such authoritative information as may be desired about the Company's organization, operation or business, the Pink Ticket Plan was adopted.

Employees of the Company carry Pink Tickets with them at all times, in and out of regular working hours. This Pink Ticket is an especially designed question form printed on pink paper.

If an employee of the Company calls at your home or store, or if you meet him on the street or elsewhere around town and you ask a question which he does not feel prepared to answer offhand, or if you make a request which he personally cannot take care of, the Pink Ticket comes into operation.

The employee writes your question or request on a Pink Ticket and despatches it direct to the proper department manager. This department manager takes an immediate personal interest in answering your question or acting upon your request.

This Pink Ticket Plan relieves you from the possible necessity of writing a letter or using the telephone. It insures prompt action and it was designed for your convenience.

Any employee of the Company, in or out of regular working hours, will gladly receive requests for information, comments or service suggestions.

The announcement that the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has been awarded the Charles A. Coffin Medal for 1923, is a tribute to the territory in which this Company operates as well as to the service it renders.

This award was made to this Company in competition with the electric light and power companies of the United States for distinguished contribution to the development of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the benefit of the industry.

"Station-to-Station" Calls

A "STATION-TO-STATION" call is a long distance connection between any two telephones (including private branch exchange switchboard operator) as distinguished from a call between individuals.

THIS company must add $20,000,000 to its investment every year to meet the demand for its service. If this money is to be obtained, adequate returns to investors must be assured. Every telephone added to our system increases the value of the service to every existing telephone.

ILLINOIS BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY
